What is it about old cars? Whatever it is, new cars don’t have it...nope! New cars might be sleek, and fast, and loaded with gadgets [my daughter talks to her car...and it responds!], but they just don’t have that allure of old cars. Besides, new cars can’t be classics...whereas every guy knows that all old cars are classics!

Maybe it’s nostalgia more than anything else. I started off with a ‘50 Ford when I was 16. Then there was the ‘57 Ford convertible; then the Chevy Impala (another convertible); ‘67 Mustang. Then I got married, and it was all station wagons and vans! [They don’t tell you that when you get married, by the way]

The Hudson’s, the Nash’s, the DeSoto’s, the Studebaker’s, and so many more...not made any more, but it doesn’t matter. They still live on in matchcover art...and besides, they’re classics!
